RECESSIONAL

ALMA MATER

O, Mount Holyoke, we pay thee devotion,
In the fervor of youth that is strong,
The courage of right is thy garland,
Our lives, Alma Mater, thy song.
So from east and from west now we gather,
And united in firm love to thee,
All years are as one, and their loyal pledge,
Mount Holyoke forever shall be,
Mount Holyoke forever shall be.
Through the heart of a new day's endeavor,
Breathes the life of the old days that live,
For what thou hast given we honor,
But we love thee for what we can give.
So when soft in a whisper thou callest,
For the treasures unlocked by thy key,
Our achievements, our hopes and our glorious faith
Shall answer, Mount Holyoke, to thee,
Shall answer, Mount Holyoke, to thee.

Music: Gladys Pratt, class of 1914
Text: Gertrude Brady Murphy, class of 1914

ACADEMIC APPAREL

The history of academic apparel has its origins in medieval British universities, particularly the University of Oxford, where scholars wore hoods and gowns as their customary daily attire. Because of the close affiliation between the university and the church at that time, academic gowns resembled cassocks and elaborately worked clerical vestments. It is from these medieval garments that American academic dress derives.

Today, American academic attire reflects the level of an individual's degree and the institution granting that degree. Black is the standard color for gowns, and the three levels of degrees are distinguished mainly by sleeve style. The length of the hood and its velvet border indicate the level of degree attained, the color of its lining identifies the institution conferring the degree and the color of the velvet trim indicates the field of learning. Some institutions have adopted solid-color gowns that incorporate their college or university colors, such as Harvard's crimson or Princeton's orange. The president of Mount Holyoke College wears a custom-made gown in the College's colors.

Many countries wear similar gowns. Chinese students might wear a "qipao" or "xue shi fu," forms of formal attire worn to important events. Vietnamese women graduating from college are likely to wear a white "ao die," described as a silken robe over trousers. Japanese women might wear a "hakama," formal attire that is associated with learnedness. Thai graduates could wear the traditional "suea khru" ceremonial attire. In Ghana, graduates wear stoles made of kente cloth, a form of striped weaving originating from the Akan people of South Ghana, over their gowns.

HONORARY DEGREE RECIPIENT

SUCHI SARIA '04

Doctor of Science

Suchi Saria is a widely recognized academic scholar and scientist whose research has originated the development of breakthrough next-generation medical tools that use artificial intelligence to dramatically improve our ability to detect diseases earlier and make the delivery of treatments more precise.

Saria holds the John C. Malone Endowed Chair at Johns Hopkins, where she directs the AI, Machine Learning and Healthcare Lab and is the founding research director of the John Hopkins Malone Center for Engineering in Healthcare. She is also an associate professor of computer science at the Whiting School of Engineering and of statistics and health policy at the Bloomberg School of Public Health, both at John Hopkins University. In 2018, she founded Bayesian Health, a clinical AI platform company spun out of her research at Hopkins, which she currently leads as their CEO.

In 2017, Saria's work was among four research contributions presented by France Córdova, director of the National Science Foundation, to the U.S. House Committee on Appropriations: Commerce, Justice, Science, and Related Agencies. That same year, she was invited to join the National Academy of Engineering's Frontiers of Engineering program. In 2018, she was invited to join the National Academy of Medicine's program for Emerging Leaders in Health and Medicine. She's recognized by IEEE as AI's 10 to Watch and by the World Economic Forum as a technology pioneer and 40 Brilliant Minds Under 40. Last year, her work was also selected as Time's Best Inventions and was given Breakthrough Designation status by the FDA.

She completed her Ph.D. and master's degrees at Stanford University after graduating from Mount Holyoke College with a bachelor's degree.

STUDENT SPEAKER

MACKENZIE PAULINE WINDUS '24

Mackenzie Pauline Windus is a graduating senior at Mount Holyoke College, pursuing a degree in chemistry with American Chemical Society certification. She is also a recipient of the Mount Holyoke College Greenawalt Merit Scholarship. Throughout her time at Mount Holyoke, she has been heavily involved in campus life, holding various leadership positions such as Resident Advisor and Residential Fellow, co-captain of the varsity rowing team, co-president and business manager for the Mount Holyoke College Glee Club, student liaison for the chemistry department and treasurer for the class of 2024 executive board. In addition to her leadership roles, she has been involved in undergraduate research advised by Professor Wei Chen, a violist in the Mount Holyoke Symphony Orchestra, and served as a student representative on the 2024 Commencement Committee. She has made a significant impact on the Mount Holyoke community through her dedication and is recognized as a passionate student leader.
